Since the beginning of 2017 I have been working with Italian luxury ceramics, companies, chefs, restaurants, and brands linked to the world of food trying to portray their images through photography. I strongly believe in telling the reality of each company through images and details that many times are not highlighted. In addition, my works have been featured in Online magazines, food magazines and books with articles and photo shoots. In addiction to photography, i have also advanced skills in social media and content creation. My new projects are in the process of being released in connection to the world of FOOD. Beside photography I am also a Professional Chef with 15 years of experience spent in fine -dining restaurants and traditional taverns both Italy and USA. Since 2013 I teach and educate through private lessons FOOD STYLING; in particular how to learn to compose or create chef dishes without attending specialized courses.
